Sinking economy creating urgency with Lemon Grove Adopt-A-Child program

There is no question that this is going to be a difficult holiday season for many people.

Those involved with the Adopt-A-Child program know this for certain - already, they have been swamped with the number of calls for inclusion in the program.

Adopt-A-Child serves Lemon Grove children and families, providing an outfit of clothing and a nice toy for each child and food for Christmas dinner for each family. Only families meeting low-income standards qualify, and the program is coordinated with all other major East County agencies so efforts are not duplicated.

Last year, the program gave gifts to 387 children and food to their 120 families. Joan Pettis, director of the Lemon Grove Adopt-a-Child program, expects to see as many as 200 families this year, and as many as 500 to 600 children. Pettis needs help from individuals, businesses and service clubs in order to provide for all these families. She will be collecting new toys and canned goods as well as accepting monetary donations which will fund the purchase of toys and food.

There are no overhead costs for the program, so 100 percent of all contributions go directly to the recipients. This volunteer program is a cooperative effort between the Lemon Grove Food Bank, the Lemon Grove United Church of Christ, and Soroptimist International of Lemon Grove. Also, the Lemon Grove Firefighters, the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station, PTA Council and PTA's, service clubs, churches, businesses and individuals are aiding with this program.

Those wishing to help Lemon Grove's needy families this holiday season can send donations to the Lemon Grove Food bank, c/o Joan Pettis, Box 518, Lemon Grove, 91946. For more information, call Pettis at 466-0503 or 589-0191.

If you know of a family which meets the criteria and is in need, pass that information to Pettis also.

Hal Jahries, manager of the Lemon Grove branch of San Diego Trust & Savings, chats with Dell Lake, owner of Dell Enterprises, at last week's Chamber of Commerce Sundowner sponsored by Dell Enterprises. The Chamber invites all interested business persons to come see what's happening.

Ribbon cutting ceremony to mark completion of first phase

The City of Lemon Grove will hold a ribbon-cutting ceremony for the opening of the downtown pedestrian access way on Dec. 3 at 11 a.m. The access way is located on the north side of Broadway, and links the shops there with the newly-constructed public parking lot on Lester Ave.

Activities scheduled include a the ribbon-cutting with words of dedication by Mayor Jim Dorman. City staff will also be on hand to answer questions regarding the project as well as other improvements planned for the downtown area over the next two years. Representatives from the Lemon Grove Chamber of Commerce and the East County Economic Development Council have also been invited to participate.

The access way is part of the continuing efforts of the city's redevelopment agency to revitalize the business district. Development of the access way completes the first of three phases of improvements detailed in the Central Business District Revitalization Master Plan, prepared for the city by Van Dyke & Associates, a San Diego landscape architectural firm.

Improvements such as decorative paving blocks in the parking areas and street crosswalks, landscaping improvements such as trees and shrubs in the medians, and replacement of standard street lights with ornamental lighting are planned. The remaining phases of the master plan are anticipated to be completed over the next two years. Phase II, which includes paving of the parking strip north of Broadway, is currently under design.

Breakfast with Santa and McGruff

The Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station is holding its annual "Breakfast with Santa" (and McGruff) Pancake Breakfast on Friday, December 13 (7:00 - 9:00 a.m.) and Saturday, December 14, (7:00 - 11:00 a.m.) at the Lemon Grove Sheriff's Station.

The cost is $3, with children and seniors only $2. All proceeds go to needy families in the community and the Adopt-A-Child program. Tickets are available in advance at the Station, the Rec Department and the Chamber of Commerce, and can be purchased at the breakfast.

Jacob leads protest on library closures

About 100 adults as well as children, many from the county's farthest reaches, gathered at the Fletcher Hills Library on Nov. 22 to protest the closure of seven county libraries.

Under a proposed county plan, Fletcher Hills, Pine Valley, Potrero, Crest, Lincoln Acres, Jacumba and Cardiff libraries would be shut to save money.

The rally, organized and lead by Dianne Jacob, candidate for District 2 County Supervisor, featured speakers from various "Friends of the Library" groups as well as educators and others.

"With an estimated 350,000 people in San Diego County functionally illiterate and reading a high priority for our children, to even talk about closing libraries demonstrates dramatically how far out of whack our government priorities have gotten," Jacob told the crowd.

Cajon Valley School Board member Nancy Splinter agreed that "our priorities are mixed up. We need people such as Dianne Jacob to turn those priorities around."

El Cajon Mayor Joan Shoemaker commented, "I just can't conceive that they would close libraries which offer such an important service in your communities."

Speaker after speaker emphasized how the libraries in their communities represented more than just a place to check out books. Sam Salazar of El Cajon pledged his support in the library fight, and Fletcher Hills Elementary School principal John Bley explained how important the library is as a resource for area students.

Citing a number of inaccuracies in the county report, and urging citizens to appear before the Board of Supervisors on Nov. 26 to fight for the libraries, Jacob concluded the rally by reminding the crowd that "the squeaky wheel gets the oil."

Helix Band wins Mother Goose competition

Last weekend was a very busy one for the Highlander band.

They started out playing at the football game on Friday night. Saturday found the band up in West Arcadia for a competition parade and field show. Sunday found the Highlander Band back at home for the Mother Goose Parade in El Cajon.

For the first time, the Mother Goose Parade was competition. Helix's drum major, Doug Martin took first place in the drum major division; and Helix's tall flags and band both took sweepstakes honors. This has been a good season for the Highlander Band, under new director, Russ Sperling. Congratulations Helix!

Helix aerial attack downs Fallbrook in first-round win

It was unseeded Helix that moved to round two against Point Loma by convincingly downing Fallbrook, 20-10.

Trailing 7-0 at the quarter and tied at the half, the Highlanders turned to the accurate arm of quarterback Gregg Wilbur to lead them to a strong second-half performance and victory. Eleven for eighteen for 216 yards and three touchdowns overall, Wilbur hit Adam Bright twice and Ken Carter once, to account for the Highlanders' scoring.

Savers have $150,000 to spend

Bank of America announced last week that distribution of the Christmas Club accounts to over 250 Lemon Grove savers amounted to over $150,000. JoAnne Simas, manager of the Lemon Grove branch, said this "should give a boost to local retailers." Adding, "Traditionally, people use the money to buy gifts, but they also use it to pay for trips, taxes or other expenses they might have during the holiday season."

The statewide totals were 140,000 savers received nearly $96 million, a payout of almost $670 each.

At B of A, savers must make regular transfers (weekly, biweekly, semimonthly or monthly) of at least $16 per transaction.

Learn how to enjoy holiday foods and stay slim by making smarter choices. The classes will be held on Dec. 5 and 12 from 6 to 7:30 p.m. in classroom 15 at the Brier Patch Campus, 9000 Wakarusa St.

B-Words Personal comments of Councilman Bob Burns

Light up the night

Just a year ago, the first B-Words appeared in the Lemon Grove Review.

It was about the Christmas decorations in our town, and it seems appropriate that it should be repeated. I would hope that this year will bring much more of that holiday spirit manifestation with even more of our homes decorated. As time goes on, we drift away from old habits, and especially when the house is empty, no longer resounding with the joyful din of children, we get lazy. We have been guilty of this lassitude, but vow that this year will be different.

It is time to dig out those boxes of colored lights and check for burned-out bulbs. Dust off that wreath that you made some time ago, or one you may have purchased from the Boy Scouts. Check the Christmas tree stand for missing parts, or actually set up that artificial tree in the garage to see if it needs refurbishing. As I recall, last year we hastily re-packed it and I do remember that some of the branches were coming apart - some magic glue and green enamel will fix it up fine. Nativity scenes are a chore to put up, and often also do need touching up with a dab of paint. But they do give such a warm feeling when you step outside after dark and view it from across the street. It seems as if there are more homes lighted with strings of lights, more Christmas scenes, and more embellishments to the regularly-decorated homes. We always trip around to see what has been added.

The house down the street from us has the big elk and the little tug boat in the front yard, along with seasonal adornments. What will be added this year? What more can Tom and Donna Clabby do on Angelus ... The Washington Street Nativity scene will no doubt add a sheep or two, at the least. All across Lemon Grove, there will be more roof lines, fences and porches ablaze with colors of the season. The originators, the Wayne Buttrons on Sheri Lane, have promised an even bigger "snowy wonderland" this year. They are the most lavish, decorating the entire face of their home and front yard each Christmas season. The place is lit up every night from 5:30 to 9 p.m., beginning on Dec. 7 until the day after Christmas. On Saturday and Sunday evenings, Dec. 14, 15, 21 and 22, Mr. and Mrs. Claus will be available for pictures, and a jolly "Merry Christmas," to all. Anyone who has not seen the beautiful display that Wayne and Kathy put up each year should not miss it. All children should bring their parents to see it.

Lemon Grove is a family kind of town where the old values and joys of friendship still are present. Decorating one's home during the Christmas season is a way of saying, "hello, friends, we wish you all of God's love and ours, as well." It can cost very little in actual money, and can have a great impact. Many families get the children involved, and the effect is tremendously heartwarming. I have always thought that third-graders are better artists than the so-called "masters." I would much rather have a finger-painting done by my granddaughter than a Rembrandt. Maybe, it is because the painting is entitled, "My Grampa."

Let's everyone get out there with the Christmas decorations and make this the "brightest" ever in Lemon Grove.

Dan Kunkel Park

Some years ago, a parcel of property was sold to the County for use as a park. It is almost exactly at the southeast corner of the city with access limited by the typography to one narrow street. On the east, the land drops away into Spring Valley with the city of Lemon Grove boundary being the street that fronts the property. With the costs of land, the dearth of park acreage in Lemon Grove, and the goals of the General Plan in mind, it seemed to be a god-send.

Plans were drawn up with different configurations and various facilities suggested for the property. The youth groups put in their pitches for soccer, baseball, etc., and with the gentle slope of the land, an amphitheater was even proposed. We had some grant money, and back then, the federal government even "shared" some of its revenues with us for such purposes. All was right in the world, we were not at war with anyone, and of course, we had the "best climate on earth." Right? Well, not completely.

First, we had the idealists who thought that such a park should be more centrally located. This was true, but we had no available land in the center of town. Next, it was posed that such a location would be more likely to serve the Spring Valley people than those of Lemon Grove. Then, came the flashbacks to the problems we had with the Washington St. Park in our early days with Soccer vs. Neighbors episodes. Lastly, we were informed by one of the representatives of the Sheriff's Department that it would take a full-time deputy just to police the premises because it's out-of-the-way, hidden location with respect to the main core of the city and the substation. So, we put the "park" on hold, and the property lays fallow with its covenant that precludes its use for anything but a park.

Now, a way has become possible for us to make a land swap, transfer the covenant obligation, and provide a real park in the center of our city that can safely and properly be used by the public. Also, the vacant land will be put to good use to provide some of the much-needed housing that the future demands. The new park land will be off Lemon Grove Way and will be easily looked after by our deputies on their regular rounds. It will be a small family park with hopefully, the old-fashioned appeal that such a park should have.

The main point of all of this lead-in is to promote the naming of the park. The name of Dan Kunkel seems to have quite naturally taken first place in the minds of the Council members. For those of us who knew Dan, there just could not be a more fitting tribute to the late Councilman, and instant friend to all that he met. Although his time on the Council was short, his involvement in Lemon Grove was long and total. Taken from us in the prime of life, he left a void that just cannot be totally filled, and I think naming the park after him is just the right thing to do.

There are certainly many familiar names that are part of Lemon Grove's short history, and their successes in land accumulation, piling up of wealth, and the wielding of power is legendary. However, those names always seem to be associated with "taking" more than with giving. Dan was a giver - of his time, or whatever was needed for the little town that he chose to call home. We who were close to him knew that Dan would probably scoff at the honor, not feeling that he deserved it, but I am sure that he will be secretly pleased if we do, wherever he is.

I sincerely hope that we see the day soon when we can offer a toast at the dedication of Dan Kunkel Park.

If you have questions or suggestions for Dr. Burns, send them to P.O. Box BB, Lemon Grove, CA 91946

We encourage letters to the editor, news items and photographs. You can call the Review at 469-0101.

Commentary

by Paul Treske

This is the week during the year when columnists of various sizes and types write something appropriate to Thanksgiving. For some, it is a personal introspection expressing gratitude for that which has gone well or had meaning in their lives. For others, it is an exercise in attempted humor in a world that needs more than a little humor to facilitate its survival.

As one who writes most often in the socio-political view, I thought it might be appropriate to express my personal gratitude for events and individuals who, in my opinion, have made the world and this country a bit easier within which to survive. Therefore...

I'm thankful for the fact that American casualties in Operation Desert Storm were so light. If we had to enter a shooting war, it was well-planned and quick, and even though its aftermath remains clouded, most of our men and women came home intact.

I'm thankful that the volcanic changes in the Soviet Union have made superpower nuclear warfare far more remote than it was a year ago. To be sure, the jury is still out on the final shape and temperament of Eastern Europe and others are working on the bomb, but we have most certainly rolled the doomsday clock back a few minutes.

I am thankful for the return of the hostages held in Lebanon and elsewhere in the Middle East. I'm delighted to have been wrong in my prediction that their release was years rather than months away. Let's hope that the rest are released soon and that hostage "diplomacy" will take a lengthy vacation.

Counting Our Blessings

by Joseph Walker

It doesn't seem like such a long time since last we basted a Thanksgiving turkey.

But, turn the clock back a year, and suddenly it does feel like it's been a while since:

- Almost every conversation included at least a passing reference to the "Bully of Baghdad," Saddam Hussein, and whether or not there would be war in the Middle East.
- Milli Vanilli actually sang.
- Kevin Costner played an historically-based character that didn't cry out for an English accent.
- Anyone wondered who killed Laura Palmer.
- A Supreme Court nominee was controversial because of what he didn't talk about.

The world has changed, even in just one year's time. Some would say it's scarier, or at least less promising, even without the worry of a huge military build-up in the deserts of Saudi Arabia. For others, life just keeps getting better. Often, the only difference between the two perspectives is the ability to focus on positives while negatives continue swirling about.

How long has it been since you counted your blessings? If it's been a while, the Thanksgiving weekend is the perfect time to run a quick tally of what's right with your life. You might be surprised how much there is to be thankful for.

For example, I'm thankful...

... for home. Not necessarily the place, mind you, but the concept. Anita and I don't own a house, but we do have a home. That's because the way we see it, "home" doesn't really have much to do with bricks and mortar. It has to do with belonging. And, togetherness... and security... and mostly, love. As Mark Twain's Adam said of his Eve, "Wheresoever Eve was, there was Eden."

... for teenagers. Yeah, I know - there are some creepy kids out there. Just like there are some creepy adults. For the most part, however, I have found today's young people to be bright, enthusiastic and very much aware of the challenges facing them in the future. And, they say, "bring it on!" Their energy and confidence are contagious, and I always feel a little livelier when I'm around them, and not just because they usually give me the honor of throwing the first water balloon.

... for reality. And, I'm thankful that my reality isn't the same as Hollywood's view of contemporary reality. Sure, the real world can be tough. But, it can be wonderful, too. Hollywood can never seem to get the handle on that balance, probably because when it comes right down to it, reality isn't very dramatic. The best times and the worst times tend to be quiet,

Giving Thanks

I am thankful to Mother Nature for having given us a "miracle March" in the midst of our dreadful five-year drought. Had it not been for the heavens opening up at that time, we would undoubtedly be at 50-percent water conservation at this time - with worse to come. It seems, here in November, that we may be in for another dry year, but maybe we'll get another big month of rain between now and next May to ease the load.

I'm thankful for Anita Hill. Her courage and poise in the face of senatorial character assassination not only has given a much-needed focus to the fight against sexual harassment in the workplace, but it perhaps has sent a message to the Senate's "old boys' club" and all other such "old boys' clubs" that locker-room humor and the general devaluing of women is no longer the rule of the day.

I am thankful to the people of Louisiana for rescuing all of us from the shame and disgrace of having a full-scale bigot and fascist in one of our state houses. We became most sanctimonious when an ex-Nazi, Kurt Waldheim, became head of state in Austria. To have David Duke, fresh from his Klan robes and swastika arm bands sitting in the Louisiana governor's chair would have been a blot on us all.

And, finally, I am thankful to the many readers who have contacted me over the past year to praise or criticize what I have written. Without knowing that you are out there reading our efforts, this, and all columns in the past and future, would be empty exercises.

personal and profound. Hollywood can't cope with such nuances. It plays to stereotypical extremes with very little room for reality in between. I'm perfectly content with a quiet evening at home with my family. Hollywood would probably have to add the "Swedish bikini team" and a prowling robotic assassin from the 21st century before that scenario would meet its standards of "reality."

... for peace. OK, so maybe peace is somewhat relative these days. Maybe there will always be a war somewhere, and maybe even a small war is intolerable. As long as the world's superpowers are able to peacefully co-exist and keep the water hoses carefully trained on the hot spots with the most incendiary potential, there's hope.

Which, is more than we could say a year ago, isn't it?

... for example. There is nothing quite as inspiring as watching another human being face adversity and conquer it - in one way or another. Look around you and you'll see neighborhoods full of powerful, positive examples. Citizens who refuse to allow gangs to terrorize their streets. Young people who buck the trend of self-indulgence and boldly say "no" to drugs, alcohol and premarital sex. Religious leaders who defend the rights of other faith groups to practice their beliefs not because they share theological underpinnings but simply because it's the right thing to do. Volunteers who staff shelters and soup kitchens for the poor and the homeless. Parents who work hard to teach their children lifetime values like honesty, integrity, tolerance and compassion. There are plenty of good examples for us to follow. All we have to do is look for them.

Just like the rest of our blessings.

From Where I Sit

My most thankful Thanksgiving

by Frank Andrews

Including this, the 1991 Thanksgiving Day, 68 plump, juicy, browned turkeys will have been passed to me. Now, that in itself should deserve the Guinness Book, or better still, it helps me count myself to sleep at night. During those many years, most of the "Turkey Days" were filled with love and thanksgiving, except for just a couple that stand out in my memories.

Our little family consisted of just Mom, Dad, and me, "Little Frankie." Our family had excess material things but lacked love. When I grew bigger, I mean really big, I married a nice, Christian girl up in Minnesota, the "Swede country," and had three beautiful daughters. That was the start of my real Thanksgiving Days until she passed away having our one and only boy, Dave. Soon after that tragedy hit my little family, we migrated to Southern California.

Until the Lord placed Willie Marie, my present loving wife, in my life, all I could pray is "Why me Lord?" For the past 27 years, and only after Willie led me to the Lord in her own "inimitable way," every day of the week became Thanksgiving Day.

In the spring of 1991, my wife, Willie Marie, and I decided to sell out San Diego and move "lock, stock, and barrel" to Northern California. We bought a nice house on a beautiful 1/2 acre on the outskirts of Oroville for less than you can buy a tiny lot in the San Diego area. We thought that this was "it." We were close to our kids, didn't owe anybody, and had money in the bank for the first time in our married life. Instead of being happy in our new home, Willie Marie and I were terribly miserable.

Although we tried desperately to find another church with some of the love and fellowship of our old church, only one even came close. It had air-conditioning, lots of "potlucks," and a preacher that was more portly than myself. What more could an "old sinner" need in a church?

Northern California and Southern California seem to be having an undeclared war going on all the time. The northerners seem to have little time for us rich, big-shot "southern folk." It was hard for Mother and me to make new friends. We just didn't fit in. Of course, at nearly 300 pounds, I've had a hard time fitting into things before.

Due to the special efforts of some of our special friends at Windsor Hills Baptist Church, another house in Lemon Grove was found for us. So after one year, almost to the day, we moved back down south to "never, ever, leave again."

This upcoming Thanksgiving will be my best, as I have so much to be thankful for: we are back with our old friends; we are back attending "our" church, which has some of the best cooks around; and with our beloved Pastor, who could be more portly without too much trouble; but above all, having the love and fellowship that we both missed so much.

Thank you Lord for this most wonderful Thanksgiving.

Lutheran Bishop to visit

Two guests will have occupied the pulpit of the Lemon Grove Lutheran Church this week: Father Jim Gunn, intern pastor of St. Phillips Episcopal Church in Lemon Grove and Bishop Robert Miller, bishop of the Pacifica Synod of the ELCA.

For the past few years, members of Lemon Grove Lutheran and St. Phillips have been exchanging services on Thanksgiving Day. Members of their choir and members of their church will come to Lemon Grove Lutheran to worship together this year for the traditional service of Thanksgiving.

As part of the ecumenical dialogue between the two churches as well as others, the joint worship services have been meaningful and valuable for members of these congregations.

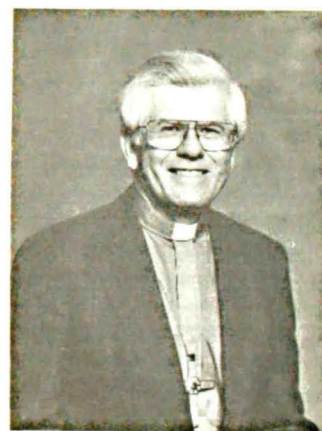

On Sunday, Dec. 1, Bishop Miller will deliver the sermon and will also spend about two hours following the worship service talking about the ministry of the ELCA. He has set a goal to visit all the congregations in his synod over the next four years. Those include Hawaii and the counties of San Bernadino, Imperial and Orange, according to Rev. E.J. Volkmann of the Lemon Grove parish.

"He wants to establish personal contact with the members in each area, listen to their concerns and discuss those concerns with them," said Rev. Volkmann.

Following the service, there will be an informal session with Bishop Miller in Luther Hall. The bishop will complete his term of office in 1995.

La Mesa Band to present annual Holiday Concert

A special "Holiday Celebration Concert" will be performed by the La Mesa Community Band and the First Christian Church of El Cajon Choir on Dec. 14 at Theatre East, beginning at 7 p.m.

Charles Yates, professor of music at San Diego State University, and Warren Tornis, Mount Carmel High School Band Director, will co-direct the 100-plus member band in its third annual holiday performance. Sponsored by the La Mesa Chamber of Commerce, the band is composed of adult musicians who "come from all walks of life and from throughout the county," according to Yates.

Last year's concert was a sell-out. A fun event for the entire family, the concert will feature both popular and traditional music of the holiday season. Santa Claus will make an appearance with candy canes for the children.

Admission is $7 for adults and $3 for children. For ticket information, call the Theatre East box office at 440-2277.

Foothills artists to meet

The Foothills Art Association, a non-profit group of local artists, will have its monthly meeting on Dec. 5. All Association meetings are at the Ben Pollack Memorial Fine Arts Center (next to Lamplighters Theatre) at 8051 University Ave.

After each regular meeting, a demonstration painting is done by a local artist. This month's demonstrating artist will be Jim Honey, who works and teaches in his Spanish Village studio in Balboa Park. He paints a variety of subjects in oil, watercolor and pastel, and is most interested in portraiture and figurative art. He has won many awards and prizes for his work, and has been a courtroom artist for a local television station.

Also, starting Dec. 6, the Foothills gallery will present the annual show of "Copies of Old Masters." Each Association member is eligible to submit a copy of an Old Master's painting (before 1910). The show will run until Jan. 2. Last year's show had many exhibitors. For more information, please call Barbara McDermott at 469-0732.

'The Little Match Girl' warms the heart and kindles the spirit of the holiday season

"The Little Match Girl" opens Dec. 5 at Grossmont College, and the title role is played by Sarah Ruddy, a 10-year-old fifth grader at Flying Hills Elementary School in El Cajon.

Three children from the Young family of La Mesa are cast in the play's ensemble - their father, Daniel Young, has the role of the father in the play. Amber, 11, Jordan, 8 and Noel, 5, have an easy time playing his kids.

Helix High School graduate Heather Beachley plays a cleaning woman in this stage version of Hans Christian Andersen's touching Christmas tale.

"The Little Match Girl" tells the story of a little girl who keeps a loving spirit of Christmas in her heart even though her life on the street selling matches is harsh and cold. She uses her imagination to dance her way from sorrow to delightful holiday memories full of fantasy, magic and illusions. When the dancing is finished, the little girl ends up in the arms of her beloved grandmother.

Performances of "The Little Match Girl" will be offered at 7 p.m. Dec. 5 to 8 and 10 to 14 with 2 p.m. matinees on Saturdays. Tickets are $7-9. For tickets and information, call the box office at 465-1700 ext. 234.

DECK THE HALLS

The Christmas tree and ornaments provided by the Friends of the Library will be put up in the library's reading area in early December. Loy Holmquist and Laura Barrett, who were not present at the November meeting, were then elected to perform that task, as they have in previous years, with the assistance of Ron Day.

WATER FOUNTAIN BUBBLES

Expert attention has cured whatever ailed the library's water fountain. A gift to the library from the Friends, the fountain served faithfully for years until diminished pressure made it ooze rather than bubble water. Ernie John, local plumbing expert, donated his time and expertise to put the fountain back into good operating condition. Thanks from the thirsty, to Mr. John

SUMMER READING - WINTER SHOPPING

In previous summers, Friends of the Library have purchased hardcover books for awards for children who completed a required number of books in the reading program. Careful shopping could provide books at a reasonable price. Increased book prices have put hardbound books beyond the Friends' budget. We have asked Carol Stanley, branch librarian, to continue shopping for and setting aside books for summer awards, but next summer they will be paperback books. Carol reports that many young people (and older ones, too) prefer paperback books since they fit well into a pocket or purse.

SEVEN FEWER BRANCHES

Recommendations for restructuring the San Diego County Library include the closing of seven branch libraries. Affected would be Cardiff, Crest, Fletcher Hills, Jacumba, Lincoln Acres, Pine Valley and Potrero. Guidelines that the County Board of Supervisors have been asked to approve include the stipulations that no community shall have more than one County Library branch within its boundaries, that rural libraries open fewer than 20 hours per week and within 15 miles of each other must be consolidated and open at least 20 hours per week, and that libraries must meet a minimum circulation standard of over 10 circulations per open hour - in order to remain open.

County funds are allotted to libraries according to a formula that includes population of the community, expected growth, and the current use of the library (circulation of books). We can't do much about increasing the square mileage of Lemon Grove or its population, at least until high-rise buildings appear here, but we can help ourselves generously from the library shelves, maintaining a high circulation

DECEMBER LUNCHEON

A December 19 luncheon will take the place of the Friends' usual meeting. We will meet at the library at 11:30 a.m., Thursday, December 19, to car-pool to the Red Lobster Restaurant, Grossmont Center. Lunches are in the $5 to $10 range; we will order individually. New members and friends are welcome, of course.

Election of officers for 1992 will take place at the time of our December luncheon. This year's officers are: Tracy Brooks, president; Ron Day, vice-president; Dorothy Geldreich, secretary; and Laura Barrett, treasurer.

STRETCHING BUDGET DOLLARS

Books and other library materials are checked out for a generous 28 days. For those who keep materials beyond that time, charges are now 20¢ per day or a maximum of $10 for adult materials. For children, the charges are 10¢ per day or a maximum of $5. This is the first increase in almost ten years and matches the daily amount charged by the San Diego City Library.

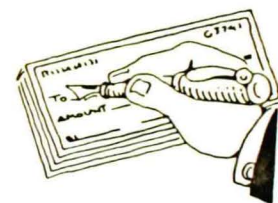

Few library patrons would begrudge the cost of an occasional library fine for an overlooked book. Your library newsletter editor, in a lifetime of library use, has not totaled in fines the cost of even one best-seller.
